

Permanent Total DisabilityR82-7-25*Payment of Permanent Total Disability Compensation Held in Abeyance when Claimant or Claimant's Representative makes Written Notification Claimant Engaged in Substantially Remunerative Employment*May 13, 1982

WHEREAS, pursuant to O.R.C. 4123.52, the Industrial Commission has continuing jurisdiction over each case and may make modification or change with respect to former findings or orders; and

WHEREAS, the Industrial Commission has a fiduciary responsibility for the State Insurance Fund.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the payment of compensation for permanent total disability is to be held in abeyance whenever the claimant or the claimant's representative makes written notification to the Industrial Commission or the Bureau of Workers' Compensation that the claimant is engaged in substantially remunerative employment. Further investigation may be necessary to determine the employment status of a claimant who makes such written notification or admission. After the investigation is completed the claim will be set for hearing before the Commission who shall terminate or reinstate the payment of compensation for permanent total disability.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that whenever documented evidence discloses that the claimant is engaged in substantially remunerative employment, but the claimant disputes such finding, payment of compensation for permanent total disability may be held in abeyance pending a hearing by the Industrial Commission on the issue of termination of permanent and total disability compensation.
